i started this book or writing to help kathy and i deal with our grief in the loss our little granddaughter and the near loss of our daughter i thought reliving the events would somehow help us cope with all the emotions one experiences during times when life hurts the most for kathy it was a painful process she would help me with certain events but could not review the writing reliving it was too painful for her as for me reliving those twelve days and the months after provided a stream for my tears to flow out of me and into the river of god s peace in the early hours of the day while sitting in my study i would write while the tears ran down my face these tears were to me like small drops of rain god was sprinkling on me to wash away my sorrow some mornings i would feel that he too was crying with me his tears were also running down my face it was his tears that washed away my sorrow my grief and replaced it with his love and his peace his love for you and me is stronger than anything this world can throw at us i learned many things during these days of remembrance the one thing i learned that stands out the most is that god s hold on us is the strongest when life hurts the most he never lets go our faith allows us to hold onto him while he is firmly holding onto us he is most capable to hold on to my family and to yours in the palm of his righteous right hand the ultimate crash guide to changing your life you ll never read another self help book ever again the narrative around being strong has been a crown of thorns for african american women since we were brought to this country as slaves being smart and clever and efficient was a matter of life and death now in present time being a smart educated and successful african american woman doesn t determine if we live or die but it often creates an isolating and lonely world because more times than not we are hustling to prove our worth to everyone all your life you ve been told to be a tough strong self reliant inscrutable black woman without a chink in her armor without an ounce of weakness you plod on isolated and lonely because you re not being true to yourself you ve been accommodating all your life you ve been willing to set aside your own interests needs and desires for the greater good you been playing the sacrificial lamb on the altar selflessness for far too long it s time to stop trying to be everyone s hero putting the needs of others above your own it is making you miserable and you know it deep within you you know your superwoman complex leaves a bad taste in your mouth more often than not leaving you exhausted unfulfilled alone and angry at the world and at the people you love with soul baring stories and anecdotes from her own troubled and traumatic life jennifer gives a detailed account of her journey to healing and shows you how you can have a more compassionate view of yourself and trust your own instincts and abilities without having to compromise to please anyone else a black women s real power is in learning to be tender and vulnerable without the fear of being rejected or betrayed it is in learning to tune in to and trust our inner guidance and intuition that we are able to rewrite the narrative so we can have a soul full inclusive and more compassionate view of ourselves
